WHAT DO YOU THINK OF THIS FOR A BOLD CRIME.

EDITORIAL

The story of the day comes from Philadelphia. It is equally far from the spirit of which has given that community its characterization as the City of Brotherly Love. A gang of ten robbers, masked, with a revolver in either of their twenty hands, in broad daylight, burst into the precincts of a prominent office, cowed, mastered and bound with wire its receiver and five other officers and rolled them, like so much freight or junk, against the baseboard of the wall. Then, with their explosive, they broke into the safe, appropriated its contents, without unnecessary detention of their captives, and swiftly stole away.

CAPTAIN CLARK'S STORY.

"Yes, the Oregon is a wonderful boat," said Captain Charles E. Clark, thoughtfully, as he looked out of the porthole window of the flying Montreal train, at the conclusion of a talk with a Globe reporter on the trip of the famous battleship from San Francisco around Cape Horn to Santiago.

The Globe reporter rode with Captain Clark from Lowell to Boston, and during that ride the captain once more went over his famous trip, from the officers of which he has not yet fully recovered. He looks hale and hearty, and is cheerful as a schoolboy in vacation time. His skin is bronzed, and his eyes shown with animation as he looked at the swiftly passing, tender green landscape, and went over some of the events that have made him famous.

"The captain is a man of medium height, squarely built, with broad shoulders and a stocky neck, on which rests a well-rounded head. He has an immense chest, and he looks like a physically powerful man—a sailor, every inch of him—not excepting that the sailor's prerogative, which is the sailor's prerogative.

When asked about his health the captain said, "I am getting along very well. My nerves are still troubling me, but my greatest trouble is sleep. I cannot sleep very much."

"Yes," he continued, in response to another question, "I suppose it comes largely from the intense strain of that run from San Francisco up the coast to Key West and Santiago, and then the waiting day and night in front of Santiago, you know we were one of the vessels that played the seafight each night on the entrance to the harbor.

"Then, of course, there was the responsibility all through the voyage. I slept during the voyage. There was so much of uncertainty about everything. When we left San Francisco we were expected, of course, but had not been expected. We started every night until dawn, and we were in the water until dawn. We had to be very careful. I felt that if we had not been declared already it might be at any moment.

"I had to keep a constant lookout for the enemy. I had photographs of her which I had received from the department before I left San Francisco. You see the channel through the Straits of Magellan is somewhat narrow and tortuous, and I was afraid that the enemy might make a dash at us from behind some of the headlands in the vicinity at any moment. Our rapid fire guns were manned and ready during that passage. Here we met the Marlin, which had anchored to ride out a storm.

"We stopped four days at Sandy Point and overhauled our engines, then we put for Rio, and here we found the Temeraire. I took the Temeraire and I ordered the Marlin to guard the harbor mouth. The Temeraire, which our government had purchased, was also in this harbor getting ready.

"Here I learned that war had been declared between Spain and the United States. Of course, we had expected it, but I could not afford to take any chances, so I sent word to the Captain of the Temeraire that if he came within a mile of the Oregon I would open fire on him without further notice. The Brazilians were very kind to us, and they guaranteed to look after the Temeraire. Of course that was very nice, but I was never certain that the Captain of the Temeraire might not open fire on me, and I was with one of her torpedoes. You can't quite trust them, you know," said Captain Clark, with a significant twinkle in his eyes, "and I wasn't taking any chances."

"The strain must have been something terrible on yourself and the crew from that time out," said the reporter. "It was," said Captain Clark, as he squeezed his hands together and clenched his jaws for a moment. "We were away from Rio all right, but there was uncertainty at every step. We had been warned about Cervera and his fleet, and you know there was a supposition at one time that Cervera was coming to en- gage the Oregon."

"What would you have done in case you met Cervera's fleet?" "Captain Mahan has explained my plan very well. Of course the things to be most dreaded were the torpedo boat destroyers. I wouldn't hesitate about tackling the balance of the fleet. I am not certain that the torpedoes could have sunk us before we had inflicted considerable damage on the balance of the fleet. I think it would have been a sick looking fleet when we got through with it. We would have to be torpedoes at least three times, I figure, before we went down, owing to the compartments in the Oregon. The most serious blow they could strike us would be to hit us amidships or thereby upset our bunkers and injure our machinery. That would have been rather fatal."

"What was your plan of attack?" "Well, knowing the speed of the Oregon as well as I did, I was going to run away and let them chase me, then you see I could handle them one at a time, for they were bound in giving chase to get into some sort of column formation."

"I taken you to read these lines—no—no—no more than the additional time which it will take you to read the Associated Press report upon which this commentary is based."

"It was one of the best conceived and best executed bank robberies on record. Its performers allowed no Philadelphia grass to grow under their feet. They went upon the Napoleonic maxim that Providence fights on the side of the strongest battalions."

"They may have reasoned that the contents of a Philadelphia office in the hands of a receiver belonged as much to them as to anybody at all."

"If their logic was defective, their methods were not. They have opened a new vista of method and opportunity in the realm of crime."

IS THIS A BEAUTIFUL FAIRY TALE? DEMAND TOO SLOAN'S SCALP.

London Papers Score Him as a Vicious Hoodlum.

Associated Press Dispatches by The Tribune's Special Leased Wire. LONDON, June 19.—The afternoon papers today are insisting that Tod Sloan, the jockey, in spite of his denials, is the man who assaulted a waiter at Ascot on Thursday.

The Evening News is indignant at the fact that the Jockey Club has apparently decided to let the matter drop, and is stirring up public feeling against him. The paper says:

"The English jockeys, by their behavior and general bearing, have succeeded during the last twenty years in totally altering their social status, and it is hard lines on them that a foreigner should come to England and bring disgrace on the profession without any official notice being taken of it. The next time Sloan appears on a race course he will learn what the public thinks of him. The fact that he denies what fifty people witnessed may display American bravado, but in no other way will it better his position."

The Star publishes several abusive letters calling Sloan an "American stable boy" and a "Lilliputian Yankee." The same paper asserts that after careful investigation, it was shown that it was Sloan and no one else who struck the waiter with a bottle, completely opening his lip, so that a large portion of it hung over his mouth.

The waiter is still under the care of a doctor. Miss Quirk did not return home last night. She told the following story to her mother this morning:

Sunday afternoon she left the Manges house in Lorin where she is employed and went to the station to meet some young lady friends. While at the station she was overcome by faintness. She was taken in a carriage to some hospital, which one she cannot remember. She remained at the hospital until it was too late to catch a car home. When she found this out she cried and said she wanted to go to her mamma. Some friends removed her to the home of an Irish woman whose name she did not learn. This morning Miss Quirk returned home to her mother. Her head was so dizzy from her faintness last evening that she did not go to work. She could not remember where she had been nor where the Irish woman resides. Her mother is still in the search to find out where her daughter was last night. The mother is a widow. The daughter is 17 years of age. Both work for their livelihood.

Miss Quirk denied to her mother that she had met any young gentlemen, friends or that she had taken any strong drinks.

GREASED THE CAR TRACKS. The Cleveland Strikers Effectively Tie Up a Line.

Associated Press Dispatches by The Tribune's Special Leased Wire. CLEVELAND, O., June 19.—The street railway company and their striking employees held no conference today. Mr. Bishop of the State Board of Arbitration, however, was in consultation with the company officials for several hours. Early in the morning men and women were busy greasing the tracks at the corner of Pearl street and Clark avenue, and at the corner of Clark avenue and Clark street. The tracks were so well greased with soap, oil and other substances that the operation of the cars was effectively prevented.

THE MOST INTENSE HEAT.

The heat of the electric furnace, which is due simply to an electric arc enclosed in a closed crucible of indestructible material, is the greatest that can be obtained artificially. When this was run up Professor Moisson it was thought that the limit had nearly been reached. But Professor Tucker of Columbia University has beaten the French professor by several hundred degrees, we are told by Electricity (April 26th). The heat produced by the electric arc is about 5,300 degrees Fahrenheit, whereas it is only 2,000 degrees when the artificial diamonds that could be made in Moisson's furnace—perhaps an exceedingly small amount—were produced.

Inspects the Property Offered to the Government.

Superintendent of Construction J. W. Roberts, of the office of the Supervising Architect in Washington, D. C., visited Oakland today for the first time officially to examine the various sites offered and proposed for Oakland's new post-office.

He made a preliminary inspection of the principal sites, as quietly and unattended as possible, devoting to that work the hours from noon until 3 o'clock.

He then called on the postmaster and in the absence of Postmaster Friend in San Jose, he was met by Assistant Postmaster Charles O. Alexander.

He left for his hotel in San Francisco by the 2:30 train.

"This visit is merely preliminary," said Mr. Roberts, "to the several I shall have to make with a view to my report to the Supervising Architect in Washington."

"Such decisions are not to be made in a minute or in a day."

"I have examined several of the proposed sites, and shall inspect them all."

"Then I may hold a conference on the matter."

"The only point I have to consider is that of eligibility."

"Economic considerations and land values do not directly enter into that phase of the problem."

"My report is not necessarily conclusive."

"It is possible that it may be followed by a commission."

"I am expecting a copy of the law on that point to arrive from Washington in a few days."

"I shall visit Oakland again on this matter in a day or two."

"Although this is my first official visit to Oakland, it is not my first visit."

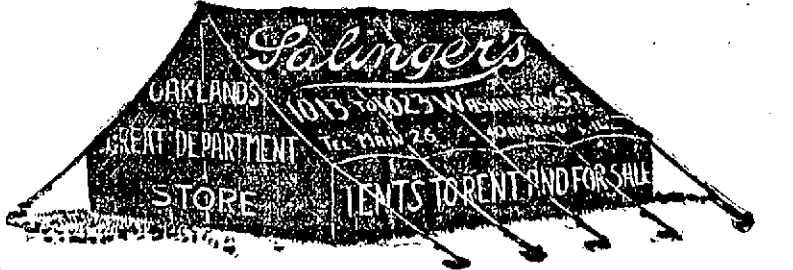

"I have lived in Oakland very pleasantly for several months."

NO COLOR LINE IN CUBA.

One of the first things that strikes an American on his arrival in Cuba is the promiscuous commingling of Caucasian and negro. There is no color line in Cuba and nowhere is this fact in greater evidence than among the promenaders of an evening at the "Plaza de Armas" in Santiago. The shade of a man's complexion has never been greatly considered in this strange city, and so one need not be surprised to encounter spotless Desdemonas hanging on the arms of dusky Obolios at every turn of the walk. Creole beauties, thinking nothing of promiscuous mingling with negro officers in uniform, or octoporn belles with beautiful, natural, wavy hair, of strolling beside and chatting gaily with white attendants. Indeed, at a wedding the other day in the old cathedral, attended by the elite of the city, the guests were people from the country round about, the bride was a lovely young white girl, the daughter of a wealthy sugar planter, while the bridegroom was a burly negro as black as the ace of spades. The latter was of good native blood, however, and one never dreamed of objecting to this mingling of racial colors.

WHAT DO THE SOUTHERN PACIFIC OFFICIALS SAY?

EUROPE'S GRAIN CROP A FAILURE.

Another Bonanza Year for Our Wheat Growers.

Associated Press Dispatches by

The Tribune's Special Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, June 18.—The Times' London financial cable says:

The small amounts of gold shipped from New York to Europe have just dried up the scale, and our money market has now fallen dead flat. Some bankers are buying bids at 1 1/2 per cent, and it is expected that the rate will go still lower. The Bank of England has attracted very little of the gold arriving from any quarter, but the sovereigns have come back from Scotland, and its reserve, therefore, is up almost to the million mark and quite enough to inspire the belief that the rate is assured all summer.

Yet gold is in demand for the continent, and the urgent requirements of the German market have not abated much. The more rates fall here the more liberty is accorded to the foreigner to buy the metal and keep our bank from getting any. But there is apparently no pressure on the bank's present stock, at any rate before a higher South American business was not destroyed this week by the mid-month settlement, and still more so, but the struggle over the external question in the Transvaal. People do not actually believe in war, but the fact was not brushed by the gold mining industry. Some among the band did their best to crush the French market, which the bubble began, and failed merely because the French bought the shares offered. The French are in a predicament, and the hands seem full, and certainly they have refused to lend any more money to their colonial rivals, which accordingly came here with but poor success.

Yet Paris never fails to buy Rand and Rio Tinto shares, and above all, Spanish bonds, which are the market. The French pay, say, for what they buy, and a political crisis at home and war abroad make no difference. The whole nation seems to be from seeing anything but an immediate change of government. The market is Spanish bonds, which are the market. Spanish bonds are now 90, but they slumped suddenly on Madrid and Paris prices. The French market is now 90, but they slumped suddenly on Madrid and Paris prices. The French market is now 90, but they slumped suddenly on Madrid and Paris prices.

HOME RULE FOR HAWAII.

A Congressman Thinks It Should Make Its Local Laws.

Associated Press Dispatches by

The Tribune's Special Leased Wire.

CHICAGO, June 18.—A special to the Tribune from Victoria, B. C., says:

W. F. Mendall, member of Congress from Wyoming, is spending a month in Honolulu whilst studying the conditions and political prospects of the new candidate for Statehood.

"I think there is no question but that Hawaii will be given a territorial form of government. I do not see how anything else can be done. Personally I am in favor of a territorial form of government with the most liberal system of self government."

"I insist, and shall insist, that the Hawaiian people should have the handling of all their local affairs. This country has been independent for years and has kept pace with the powers in all matters of government."

"I am sure that your public men who are familiar with local conditions and the views and needs of people can reach their local laws to our better advantage than Congress could ever hope to do."

"My idea of just the form of government that will prevail in Hawaii, and the same as between the United States and the territories of the mainland, except that Hawaii be left in absolute or nearly absolute control of its local affairs as may best appear to public interest."

"I would hardly venture to say this platform will prevail in Congress, but believe the West, and perhaps most of the East, may be extremely friendly to such a policy."

FRED KAHN WILL GO TO ALASKA.

Associated Press Dispatches by

The Tribune's Special Leased Wire.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—The War Department will announce this week what franchises in Porto Rico can be granted by military action and what can be granted by Congress. Army engineers will prepare maps showing the winding and doglegged routes for the military Commission has furnished information relative to the interior of the island.

Paris syndicate is seeking a franchise for a railway line in Porto Rico.

PROGRESSIVE TRINIDAD.

Associated Press Dispatches by

The Tribune's Special Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, June 18.—A dispatch to the Herald from Kingston, Jamaica, says: "The government of Trinidad has decided to adopt the Marconi system of wireless telegraphy for communication with the dependency of Tobago."

Tobago is an island in the Windward group of the British West Indies, thirty miles in length by twelve wide, twenty-four miles northeast of Trinidad. It was ceded to Great Britain by France in 1763.

Working Night and Day.

The busiest and mightiest little thing that ever was made is Dr. King's New Life Pills. Every pill is a sugar coated globe of health that changes weakness into strength. Helplessness into energy. Languor into mental power. They are wonderful in building up the health. Only 25c per box. Sold by Ogden Bros., Bay View and Broadway.

Arrested for Battery.

Colin Kent, aged 17 years, was arrested yesterday on a charge of battery. He engaged in a fight with the son of Contractor Ben O. Johnson, and it is claimed that he hit the latter over the head with a rock. The fight occurred near Twenty-first and Market streets.

EARLY MORNING FIRE SUPPRESSED.

At 3:40 o'clock this morning a fire was discovered in the large frame building at the northeast corner of First and Jefferson streets.

Special Police Officer Ford turned in the alarm. The firemen from the Third street engine house turned out promptly and soon extinguished the flames.

The fire is supposed to have been caused by sparks from one of the neighboring chimneys.

Losses are estimated at $100, covered by insurance. The Teala Coal Company occupies the structure, but suffered no loss as the fire was confined to the roof.

Broke Her Arm.

Miss Kate Townsend of 468 Sixth street fell on her doorstep at an early hour yesterday and broke her arm. She was treated at the Receiving Hospital.

THE LATEST YARN.

A Pittsburg drummer tells this new yarn: "I always carry a bottle of Kemp's Balm in my grip. I take cold easily and a few doses of the Balm always makes me well again. Every where I go I speak a good word for Kemp's Balm to my customers—I take old men and young men, and tell them confidentially what I would do when I take cold. At drug stores, 25c and 50c."
